EPPO: Criminals must prosecute themselves!

 European Union, Latvia, Uncategorized | Leave a Comment | December 28, 2021 | By John Christmas

I have written several articles for EU Bubble about the fraud campaign by the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development (EBRD) and Latvian government. They organized two fake (secretly reversible) privatizations of Kremlin-linked banks to protect embezzlers and money launderers from prosecution while sticking American, British, and European taxpayers with billions of euros of losses.

Clear evidence of this huge fraud has been openly available since a Nomura report for the Latvian government was leaked in 2010. This evidence was reinforced later by (1) an investigation by the Dutch Parliament in 2014, (2) a letter from Eurostat in 2014, (3) a pronouncement by Latvia's Vienotība in 2014 admitting to their own guilt, and (4) a report from Eurostat in 2018 which confirmed that the fraud is still continuing now. Somehow, all of that information has been ignored by the mainstream media, auditors, ratings agencies, regulators, and prosecutors in many effected countries.

In 2021, a new institution was created. The European Public Prosecutor's Office (EPPO) was intended to help expand rule-of-law in Europe. Specifically, there is a problem that corrupt prosecutors in member states often refuse to prosecute top government officials in their own countries. EPPO theoretically could help in such situations.

On 6 August 2021, I made a submission to EPPO explaining the EBRD-Latvia fraud. The submission was a series of questions online with fields to write responses and I can't attach it here.

After making that submission, I sent registered letters to the EBRD Board of Governors who are, mostly, the finance ministers of the 69 countries that invested in the EBRD. These letters explained the same fraud which I complained to EPPO about, since I want as many people as possible to know what is happening. Here is my letter to Germany as an example:

EBRD Letter

On 7 October 2021, EPPO sent a reply that they do not have 'competence' to investigate this fraud. Keep in mind that this is one of the largest frauds in European history and undermines not only the economies of Europe but also the security of Europe. The fraud can be proven in a few minutes so it doesn't require a large investigation. The response is written in Latvian language and says that Latvian officials must investigate and prosecute themselves:

Cienītā kundze/Godātais kungs!

Eiropas Prokuratūra (EPPO) ir izskatījusi Jūsu dokumentus/vēstuli saskaņā ar Padomes Regulu (ES) 2017/1939 un secinājis, ka atbilstoši minētās Regulas 22. un 23. pantam sniegtā informācija neietilpst tās kompetencē.

EPPO nav juridiska pamata uzsākt pārbaudi saistībā ar iespējamo prettiesisko rīcību, jo tā ir Latvijas valsts tiesībsargāšanas iestāžu kompetencē.

Saskaņā ar Regulu lietās, kas nav EPPO kompetencē, informācija tiek nodota kompetentai valsts iestādei par jebkādiem faktiem, kas EPPO kļuvis zināmi, un kas saskaņā ar valsts tiesību aktiem varētu būt noziedzīgs nodarījums.

Jūsu iesniegto informāciju EPPO nosūtīja izskatīšanai kompetentai Latvijas valsts iestādei. Ja būs nepieciešami papildu skaidrojumi vai informācija, kompetentā valsts iestādes var ar Jums sazināties.

EPPO ir pabeigusi šīs lietas izskatīšanu un nevarēs atbildēt uz papildu vaicājumiem saistībā ar to.

Lūdzam neemt vērā, ja EPPO saņem dublikātus vai turpmākus ziņojumus saistībā ar informāciju, kas attiecas uz šo lietu, neatkarīgi no tā, vai tie nosūtīti, izmantojot tos pašus vai citus kanālus, EPPO sniegt atbildi sūtītājam(-iem) tikai viena paziņojuma veidā. Atbilde var netikt sniegta, ņemot vērā identiskus ziņojumus vai dublikātus.

Lai iegūtu sīkāku informāciju par EPPO, tostarp par tās kompetences jomām un darbību, sākumā apmeklējiet mūsu tīmekļa vietni: www.epo.europa.eu.

Ar cieņu,

remember that EPPO had an opportunity to stop the fraud earlier however failed just like many institutions before.
